A Memoir by Gulnaz

In the heart of the Middle East, behind closed doors, lies a world that few outsiders have ever seen: the harem. In Some Girls: My Life in a Harem, Gulnaz shares her extraordinary story of growing up in a harem and the challenges she faced as a woman in a male-dominated society.

Gulnaz was born into a wealthy family in Saudi Arabia. Her father was a powerful sheikh, and her mother was one of his many wives. From a young age, Gulnaz was groomed to be a perfect wife and mother. She was taught to be subservient to men and to never question their authority.

When Gulnaz was 15 years old, she was married to a man who was twice her age. Her husband was a cruel and abusive man, and Gulnaz's life in the harem became a living hell. She was forced to endure physical and emotional abuse, and she was constantly monitored by her husband's guards.

Despite the challenges she faced, Gulnaz never gave up hope. She dreamed of a better life, and she knew that she had to escape from the harem. With the help of a sympathetic guard, Gulnaz finally managed to flee to the United States.

In America, Gulnaz started a new life. She went to college, got a job, and raised a family. However, she never forgot the women who were still trapped in harems around the world.

Some Girls: My Life in a Harem is a powerful and moving memoir that sheds light on the hidden world of harems. Gulnaz's story is a testament to the strength and resilience of women, and it is an inspiration to all who believe in freedom and equality.

Praise for Some Girls: My Life in a Harem
