Smith's investigation reveals that the Titanic was not as unsinkable as its builders claimed. In fact, the ship had several design flaws that made it vulnerable to sinking. Smith also uncovers evidence that the ship's captain, Edward Smith, made several mistakes that contributed to the disaster.

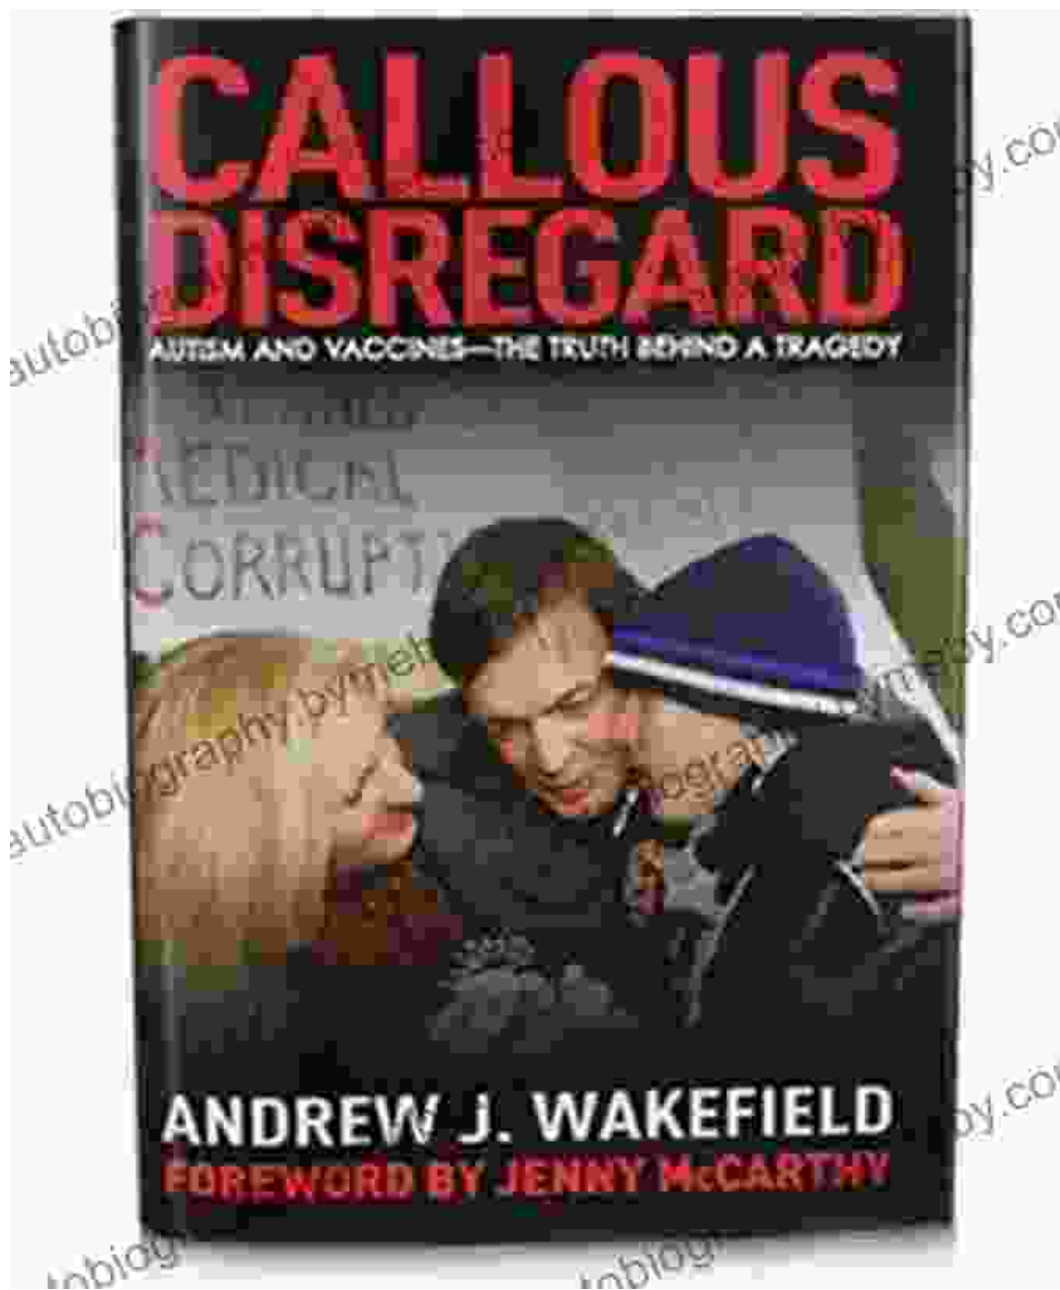

The 9/11 Attacks

The 9/11 attacks were the deadliest terrorist attacks in history. Nearly 3,000 people were killed when hijacked airplanes crashed into the World Trade Center, the Pentagon, and a field in Pennsylvania.

Smith's investigation reveals that the 9/11 attacks could have been prevented. He uncovers evidence that the U.S. government had prior knowledge of the attacks but failed to act on it. Smith also reveals that the
