In his new memoir, Unmasked, Webber opens up about his life and career, sharing his insights on the creative process, the challenges of balancing art and commerce, and the personal struggles he has faced along the way.

Webber begins his story with his childhood in London, where he grew up in a musical family. His father was a composer and his mother was a singer, and young Andrew was soon showing signs of his own musical talent. He began composing at the age of six, and by the time he was a teenager, he was writing full-length musicals.

In 1965, Webber met Tim Rice, who would become his writing partner for many years. Together, they created some of the most successful musicals of all time, including Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat, Jesus Christ Superstar, and Evita.

In the 1980s, Webber began to write musicals on his own, and he soon achieved even greater success. His musicals Cats, The Phantom of the Opera, and Sunset Boulevard became global phenomena, and they continue to be performed to this day.

In Unmasked, Webber talks about the creative process behind his musicals, from the initial inspiration to the final performance. He also shares his thoughts on the challenges of balancing art and commerce, and the personal struggles he has faced along the way.

Unmasked is a fascinating and revealing memoir from one of the most successful composers of our time. It is a must-read for any fan of musical theater or popular music.
